

Cornell University
Community & Regional Development Institute (CaRDI)

2018 Community Development Institute

Flood Risk & Community Resiliency

October 11 & 12, 2018 - Cornell University, Ithaca NY

Toward a Collaborative Approach to Flood Risk & Resiliency

Equitable Community Engagement in Climate Resilience Planning

Policy Responses to Flood Risk & Resiliency

Community-Based Flood Research

Actionable Strategies for Reducing Flood Risk

Financing Flood Resilience

Outreach Strategies & Climate Change Communication

Tools & Technical Planning Resources

...and more!

CaRDI's annual Community Development Institute focuses on critical pieces of the community development process, and is designed for a diverse audience of local community leaders, extension educators, researchers, practitioners, and policymakers at multiple levels. Each year we highlight a different theme, bringing presenters and discussants together from across New York State to share the latest research, innovative approaches, policies, and practical perspectives.

For Registration & full agenda visit www.cardi.cornell.edu or click here

Co-sponsored by

New York State
Water Resources Institute